PROFILE

I am a young, passionate web developer with leadership and communication skills honed through my experience as a former team leader in school. I am a good team player who enjoys collaborating effectively with others, motivating teammates, and solving complex problems. As a coding teacher to young children, I aspire not only to provide engaging, supportive and enriching learning experiences, but also to inspire them to become successful coders. I am a dedicated developer who thrives in individual and team settings, always seeking new challenges and opportunities for personal and professional growth.
